Operationalizing the Ethics Movement

“The Ethics Movement” The journey to drive ethics to the center of business and build a better world.

It’s an inspiring idea, but how do you make it happen? Join us as we kick off CONVERGE21: Workshop Edition, the only event in compliance where you’ll start the work to action that vision—live and in collaboration with your peers. Today, we talk about operationalizing your program: laying the groundwork for future automation, so you and your team can focus on impactful strategies that move the needle.

WORKSHOP SESSIONS

From Fear to Enthusiasm: Embracing Data Privacy with Confidence

Are you concerned that your compliance program may be holding onto data that according to regulators, you’re not supposed to have? Afraid to dive into analyzing your data because you don’t know what you’ll find? Not sure where to start?

We’ll begin the work today by taking the fear out of data privacy. We’ll show you what’s possible, what’s okay with regulators, and how to find out what you have. Our experts will walk you through a case study unlike any other, then tackle the gaps in your own knowledge and processes.

Disclosure Automation is a Mindset. It Starts with Repeatable, Scalable Processes

It’s true—the future of risk management is fully automated and powered by technology like AI and machine learning. But you don’t need those tools in hand to start benefiting from automation today. The first step to automated risk management is simply building a repeatable process of identifying risk—and by the time you leave this workshop, you’ll have a process that’s ready to implement within your conflicts of interest program

From there, we’ll show you a clear path from simply “repeatable” to fully “scalable,” laying the groundwork for full automation and eliminating manual tasks that distract you from impactful, strategic thinking.

WORKSHOP SESSIONS

Demystifying Data & Analytics: Leverage What you Have for Effective Risk Management

You may have never done a risk assessment and be intimidated by it. You may have a robust program with an enterprise risk tool. Irrespective of your program maturity, we can all leverage the data we do have to make defensible decisions, appropriately apply (often limited) resources, and effectively identify & mitigate risk.

Risk is not necessarily about a problem, it's often about a blind spot. This workshop will serve scenario data sets to explore what insights we'd expect to see and ideate the appropriate actions for robust risk management.

Changing the Conversation: Behavioral Science and Data Can Transform the Way you Speak to the Business

Infusing behavioral science with data analytics in your program can seem daunting. But what if it were as simple as uncovering the right information and changing your conversations to be much more meaningful?

Ethics and compliance speaks with the business daily—we communicate our helpline and its results, case and investigation processes and outcomes, and engage our employees on a multitude of critical issues. What you are talking about (data) and who you are talking to (human behavior) matters. Let behavioral science together with data analytics truly communicate the value of our function for greater buy-in from your stakeholders.

Accelerating the Ethics Movement

The Ethics Movement is underway, and we've begun the journey toward a streamlined, operationalized program. But once your compliance operations are running smoothly, where should your attention shift?

Today, we dive into the strategic elements of your ethics and compliance program—building culture, engaging people, and changing behaviours. WORKSHOP SESSIONS

Turning the Tide on Retaliation: Making our Companies Safe Again

Retaliation against whistleblowers is a serious and worsening problem. According to a 2021 ECI survey, 79% of reporters in the US experienced retaliation. If left unchecked, retaliation will erode program effectiveness. The EU Whistleblower Directive introduces a 'reverse burden of proof' for companies to substantiate that they have done enough to protect whistleblowers.

The call to action is clear: Shift our mindset on retaliation and transform how companies protect whistleblowers. In this co-creative workshop, we will define our biggest challenges with anti-retaliation and identify actionable solutions.

Think Like a Marketer: Create a Buzz About Your Code of Conduct

Your employees and vendors are subject to a barrage of information, day in and day out. How do you make your Code of Conduct—something they've been conditioned to think of as boring—stand out and grab their attention? And once you have their attention, how do you keep it, let alone make it something to remember?

After all, your goal isn't just to engage your employees, it's to influence their behavior. In this workshop, we'll break down how to reframe your code of conduct, policies, and more so that your workforce is engaging with your message, taking desired actions, and ultimately helping you achieve your goal of building a more ethical business.

WORKSHOP SESSIONS

The Silence of the Corporate Lambs

This workshop-style session immerses you in a mythical world, where self-interest is the norm, corporate stars thrive no matter what, and the big numbers rule. A world in which staff are compliant and quiet, where leaders battle it out for the biggest bonus and most equity.

Sound familiar? If you haven't worked there, you probably know someone who has. So how do you spot the warning signs before myth becomes reality? Does it really matter, if business is good? Throw yourself into a cultural mystery tour, anticipate outcomes, and chart a better path for your organization in this workshop.

How to Integrate your Programme with ESG and Key Business Initiatives

The ESG framework is permeating everything. From how we do business, to where companies make financial investments, to what regulators will govern. What is unclear is where ethics and compliance fits in; do we lead ESG? Are we an input or more? What is clear is that we need to understand it or get left behind.

Let's begin the work together as we leverage the knowledge of early ESG adopters to better understand this evolving, fast-moving subject. We'll cover the components of the framework and how we swim, not sink, in making ESG meaningful within our organisations and the communities we serve.

By working together again. Join us to hear how you can leverage the wealth of learnings and connections over the past two days. Special guests will close out the general session with an announcement you won't want to miss.
